It's a great Minecraft-esque game, I love the visuals and blocks. Just think it shouldn't be advertised as a free to play game, when you clearly have to play to play it.. Mindless monotony gave up after 20 minutes. asked for a refund. Great game and lovely soundtracks!

I would recommend to play it.. Wife and I played through the first room. Was enjoyable. Would like to play more rooms!

As other reviews mention, dropping things due to collisions, things that may disappear. It can be avoided if you play carefully, but it's something that should be fixed in the future. It is by the way the exact same problems we had with the other escape room game called Abode (also a cool game).

Besides mentioned bugs, all I am left with is a feeling of wanting more, which is a good thing.

At 0.99 it's worth it even for the one room.. Y'know, It really makes me sad to see that this mod has no players. I remember playing it back in 2010 (I think it was 2010, at least...) and really enjoying it. I highly recommend this to anyone! I just wanna see some players on this.

Oh, and could the Devs implement bots?. Natural Locomotion is what should be built into SteamVR. Just get it, this is a no-brainer.. Pretty fun game, and the challenge pacing is nice.

Disclosure: I betatested the game, but I have also played the final version.

Strange RPG Maker game, but in a good way. It is quite different from the rest of what this engine offers.

Pros:

- true point and click adventure game
- some really good puzzles
- story is interesting overall
- I liked the soundtrack

Cons:

- writing is hit and miss and there are some grammatical errors in the dialogues
- could be better with more unique art. My wife asked to write the review for this one:

"Carly and the Reaperman is even more fun than the trailer suggests! I had the happiest of times playing with my husband. His platforming skills made him the best choice for Carly and I played as the Reaperman. With its beautiful art style, increasingly elaborate level design and a seemingly simple, yet very poignant narrative, Carly delivers one of the most creative VR experiences that I have ever played.

That being said, it does have some flaws. Several glitches in the game resulted in lost progress, forcing us to repeat some of the most difficult levels. In one instance, we found a way to cheat through some pixel perfect platforming just to avoid having to repeat the entire puzzle for a 2nd time.

Throughout the game, you have the option of collecting small, glowing orbs, but we could never figure out what they were used for if anything. In that same vein, we were never given more than a handful of choices for character costumes. Not that these two things are integral to the whole experience, it just left us wondering why have them in the game at all then?

Overall I would recommend the early levels of the game to anyone, but playing through to the end of the game will take patience, lots of communication and a great degree of skill. Fist bump!". Very cool game!

Very nice graphics made at a high level!

In general, everything is done in the best traditions of TD, only better and more fun! I love this cow's!

Waiting updates!. the Locomotive may be expensive BUT you get 4 locomotives, Senarios, Realstic brake system, and A FIREMAN WHO BLINKS!. This game just plain sucks. It's a board game style, frivolous tween expose, for girls interested in the intricacies of the 1920's social heirarchy. Of which I am not! You will find yourself playing the same cards very quickly and knowing all the responses. It's repetative, uninteresting, and all together a mess of a game. Although I am not the target audience, I'm not sure those who fit this game will even appreciate it.
